

Paul Watson Calls Eco-Terrorism a "Human Right"™

Contributed by Tom McGregor
Tue, Jul 31, 2012, 05:54 PM

Thomas Jefferson wrote in the United States Declaration of Independence, "we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness." Meanwhile, a fugitive of justice, Captain Paul Watson, contends that we should have a "human right" to commit acts of eco-terrorism. A German court has issued a warrant for his arrest on the grounds that he is accused of attacking Japanese whaling ships, which enjoy a legal right to hunt for whales for scientific purposes. Captain Watson is founder of the Sea Shepherd ship, which sails the ocean blue to terrorize whaling boats. He announced that he will file a lawsuit with the "Human Rights Commission" and confront the European Parliament to declare that he has a "human right" to attack Japanese whaling ships. A person claiming to speak on behalf of Captain Watson issued this statement, "the case of Paul Watson would also be presented to the pertinent Human Rights commission and organizations and shall be placed on the agenda of the European Parliament, the international agreements shall be respected and it is clear that Germany might need to explain to the European Parliament the reason to accept the extradition request from a Caribbean country without an extradition agreement." Tmcgregordallas@yahoo.com