

Obama Throws Eco-Democrats Under Bus

Contributed by Tom McGregor
Thu, Sep 6, 2012, 05:56 PM

President Barack Obama fears that supporting climate change carbon-trading schemes could derail his re-election bid for the White House, since gas prices are soaring. So he's deployed Democrats to feign support for more moderate views on environmentalism.

The Houston Chronicle reports that, "they are the missing pages of a convention story line, ideas and initiatives once prominently featured in President Barack Obama's agenda."

Even former Vice President Al Gore, a global warming alarmist, has been noticeably absent from the Democratic National Convention.

According to the Houston Chronicle, "the Democratic platform tempers its language on climate change, compared to the 2008 party document."

Four years ago, Democrats referred to climate change as "the epochal, man-made threat to the planet and one of the biggest threats of this generation — an economic, environmental and national security catastrophe in the making."

To read the entire article from the Houston Chronicle, link here: Tmcgregordallas@yahoo.com