A man in Houston is learning the hard way that turning a stripper into a girlfriend leads to disastrous consequences. The Houston Chronicle reports that, "an exotic dancer is in custody after a man she met at a strip club told police that she set him up to be robbed court records show."

As disclosed by court documents from the Harris County District Court, Amber Lynn Garcia, 24, has been charged with aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon for the July 20 crime.

According to the Houston Chronicle, "Garcia met the patron at the strip club, Glamor Girls, where she worked as an exotic dancer. The man told police the two developed a relationship and arranged to meet at her apartment complex at the 1800 block of Johanna. He was near the back of the complex when two men approached his car."

The robbers forced him to take off his pants while stealing his cash and watch.
