Now even European Union bureaucrats are demanding bailout funds and admit they're bankrupt. The Daily Mail of London reports that, "Britain faces $1 billion bill from Brussels because the European Commission has blown its budget for the year."

EU bureaucrats are demanding that British taxpayers hand over $976 million to them for over-spending. The UK already contributed $12 billion annually to the EU.

According to the Mail, "the crisis has been sparked because officials spent far more than they were allocated under the budget approved by MEPs last November."

Nevertheless, Greg Clark, Financial Secretary to the UK Treasury, denounced the EU for "financial incontinence" and declared that the British government would not give extra funds to EU bureaucrats.
