President Barack Obama has launched a brigade of young soldiers to fight for UN-mandated Climate Change carbon trading schemes, and participate in Pro-Obama propaganda activities. Oh and by the way, they're permitted to carry fully loaded guns in public squares as well.

According to WhiteOut Press, "The Department of Homeland Security has just graduated its first class of 231 Homeland Youth. Kids, aged 18-24 and recruited from the President's AmeriCorp volunteers, they represent the first wave of DHS's youth corps, designed specifically to create a full-time, paid, standing army of FEMA Youth across the country."

The Department of Homeland Security graduated its first class of FEMA Corps on September 13.

As reported by WhiteOut Press, "domestic federal agencies under DHS, including FEMA, have ordered billions of rounds of ammunition as well as the corresponding firearms. Admittedly, these new weapons and ammunition aren't to be used in some far-off war or to fight forest fires in California, but right here on the streets of America."

Innocent civilians have claimed to witness the appearance of "heavily-armed FEMA fighting vehicles" at some streets.
