

Is Schieffer's "Obama bin Laden" Gaffe Freudian Slip?

Contributed by Tom McGregor
Mon, Oct 22, 2012, 10:26 PM

As Vice President Joe Biden loves to say, "I say what I mean," so did the Presidential Debate moderator, Bob Schieffer of CBS News make a Freudian slip when he advertently said "Obama bin Laden" when introducing a question about extremist organizations supported by Pakistan?

Fox News reports that, "moderator Bob Schieffer for the most part stayed in the background of the third presidential debate, but he got caught making one notable verbal gaffe, confusing the names of the president and America's former most wanted terrorist."

Schieffer said, "we know that Pakistan has arrested the doctor who helped us catch Obama bin Laden. It still provides safe haven for terrorists, yet we continue to give Pakistan billions of dollars. Is it time for us to divorce Pakistan?"

According to Fox News, "the final face-off between President Obama and Mitt Romney focused primarily on foreign policy, though it occasionally veered into domestic issues, like the economy and taxes."

To read the entire article from Fox News, link here: tmcgregordallas@yahoo.com