

Naomi Campbell to Live in Russian Spaceship

Contributed by Tom McGregor
Thu, Oct 25, 2012, 10:34 PM

Who says globetrotting super models can't be grounded? Perhaps that would be true for Naomi Campbell, who has moved into a new home in Russia designed to look like a spaceship.

According to Pravda, "Russian billionaire, the chairman of the Board of Directors of Capital Group, Vladislav Doronin, has built a futuristic mansion for his girlfriend Naomi Campbell in Moscow's suburban area known as Rublyovka. The house for the supermodel looks like a spaceship."

British architect Zaha Hadid designed the home. The Russian entrepreneur intends to give the house to the British model when they get married.

As reported by Pravda, "the house of 2,500 square meters is called Capital Hill Residence. The building consists of two 22-meter-high towers and is designed in ecostyle — a mixture of modern technologies and natural forms.

The white mansion stands aloof amidst pine trees."

To read the entire article from Pravda, link here: Tmcgregordallas@yahoo.com